mrm.rulos.org.br Mod:UnCruelty. Thanks to Maicon and Xuzi, who made this possible. Sep 22, 2013 Easy way to get ride of unwanted mod! A: There are a number of ways to do this and really depends on how you want it to look. 1. Create your own maps If you want to keep all your mods on one server and you're not worried about portability, this is the way to go. You can either have them be user made or pre-made. User made are obviously the most flexible because all you need is a map editor to make it and to install it, but it is also more time consuming. You'll need to be fairly skilled at map making in order to make a good custom map though. Pre-made mods are the easiest route. They're already made and they can be installed and played at once. The downsides are that they will not be as customisable as user made maps. 2. Load the mods into a world For users who want to use their own mods, but don't want to download any pre-made maps and can't/don't want to make their own custom ones, this is the way to go. This is done by loading them into your existing world. The way to do this is to look in your player directory. 3. Disable mods in your world For users who are worried about being stuck using mods that they don't like or don't want to load all the mods into a world (either pre-made or custom) this is the way to go. You can turn off mods from the in-game interface by clicking the Mods tab and selecting Disable. Another way to disable them is to edit your world and comment out the code that loads the mod. A: There is one addon on the server that allows you to disable mods. To use it, go to the main menu and select Commands. Then type /setmodconfig and press enter. After that, the mods should be disabled and you will be able to use them. In the screenshot above, "Disable mods" is the option. When you want to enable a mod again, just type the same command and the mods will be enabled.
