Wince firmware download Wince firmware download Wince firmware download Wince firmware download Wince firmware download Upload a firmware file for your device to the update server. You will be directed to a page where you can select the firmware to upload. The firmware file you upload must match exactly the chip on the device your are updating. You can find your device's model number by opening the browser on your device and clicking on the About option. To connect to the Nexus player update servers with the PC, you must download these packages from the Firmware tab and then flash them on the Nexus player with the Nexus player's Firmware Updater software: The Firmware Updates for the Nexus Player include changes to address stability and performance issues. Please avoid installing updates to address bugs until the Nexus player's Flash Storage is re-initialized. If you are not using the Nexus player's Flash Storage, please refer to the Firmware Updates for the Nexus player to flash a new firmware version, or you may use one of the firmware files that are included in the download. You must first download the firmware file and then install the file by using the Nexus player's Firmware Updater software. For more information about installing firmware files on Nexus player, refer to the Nexus Player: Set Up and Install a Firmware Update guide. You can check to see if there is a new firmware available by opening the browser on the device and clicking on the About tab. Alternatively, to update the firmware on an existing Nexus player, the latest version of the Nexus player's Firmware Updater software is available for Android devices. For information about the Nexus player Firmware Updater software, refer to the Nexus Player: Install a firmware update guide. This device will recognize if it is connected to a car stereo with a BlueTooth setup. If this is the case, the device will remain in the Auto Connect Mode (aka Bluetooth Scan Mode) when used with a car stereo, and will only display its IP address to the user. All other Bluetooth devices (cell phones, headsets, etc.) will not be available in Auto Connect Mode, and the device will display its IP address when paired with them. The most common cause of this issue is mis-connecting the USB Bluetooth dongle or computer speakers to the device. Even though the device is pairing correctly with the car stereo, it won't be assigned an IP address. Entering this mode is helpful when using
