

Q: How to make a while loop in a batch file I would like to know how to make a while loop in a batch file that is in a cmd window. I know how to do it in a powershell window. I want to make a loop that loops forever and would do things inside it. Thanks for all your help. A: Do it like this in any batch file: :loop REM Do something REM Loop goto :loop If you want to have it in a while statement then you'll need to add a space between the : and the label. Like so: :while true REM Do something REM Loop goto :loop A: In case the while loop needs to be external to the batch file, the following approach is very simple and robust. Example batch file: @echo off :next echo %date% set /a counter=%random% %% 50 echo %counter% if %counter% LSS 2 goto :end goto :next :end Command prompt example: > set /p n=Enter number (10 or lower): >.\test.bat 17/10/2011 09:21:32 Enter number (10 or lower): > #include "support/allocator/detail/globals.h" #include "profiler.h" #include "platform/utls.h" #include #include #include namespace { std::string formatPath(const std::string &filename, const std::string &base_path) { std::string absolute = filesystem::absolutePath(filename, base_path); absolute = system::CString(absolute.c_str()); return absolute; } } namespace profiler { void init() { debug = (unsigned)ALLOCATOR_THRESHOLD == 0; } void clean() { debug = 0; } void alloc(size_t n, const char *name) { debug = n; } void
