A: Generally speaking, you can't get a virus from the Microsoft website. Viruses get there by tricking you to run malicious executables. Microsoft has the best security and anti-malware protection in the world, and they're not the one who infects you. A: I'm no expert but it sounds like you got yourself a dodgy download. Try downloading it again and the installer should be able to warn you about it. Alternatively, try downloading it from another source. One that isn't as likely to let your computer get infected by a virus and/or malware. Rabbi Shlomo Levi has declared that the adaption of the principle of "Hakdama (sending the majority)" to the context of IDF combat units is racist and a violation of Israel's basic principles. He specifically cited the case of a bereaved family whose son had committed a civilian crime, but was given the option of voluntary IDF enlistment, and opted for it. The family believes that their son was unnecessarily placed in combat because they were Arab. Aftermath of the Gilad Shalit kidnapping and imprisonment in Egypt. The family has not yet made any decision as to whether to request compensation for their son from the government. Rabbi Levi told Ynet, "Imagine that you have been given the option to join an IDF combat unit and signed the enlistment form. Would you refuse to be there and go on a hunger strike?" He continued, "It's like saying, 'We will pay you for losing a relative.' There is no logic in such a comparison. "There are multiple Jewish values and among them is the notion of 'Hakdama.' By declaring that Hakdama includes the context of combat units, the central principle of Hakdama is degraded to the level of 'Let's divide up the land based on whatever criteria we can find, even if it leads to terrible tragedy.' There is no clear-cut limit. "The society in which we live is based on the principle of the sanctity of life. We are not a Jewish state that allows a room for murder. We are obligated to ensure that every person receives an adequate amount of care." Rabbi Levi pointed out that Jewish parents whose sons were 2d92ce491b
