Time is the most valuable resource we all equally have, and one of the hardest to manage. A careful management can increase efficiency in every domain of activity, but what about time spent on non-core duties? A common solution is to use an application to take notes and store everything, but this application often requires a huge amount of space on your device, or you'll have to carry it along as a separate system. There's a better way to do this by using GeeTeeDee Portable. Placing it on an USB flash drive, you can check your tasks from other computers, and you'll never have to worry about space, since it relies on system registries to function. A classic window frame design provides the visual layout, and all features are present in a modern, minimalist setting. Personal time management made easy A side panel allows you to organize folders. There's the default inbox with several presets, but you're free to add many more, with the possibility to pick from several different, high-quality icons for easy identification. When pressing the Compact button, the window moves over the navigation panel to provide even more space. A few last words GeeTeeDee Portable might not have a bunch of options to set, but the overall design, simplicity, and portability are more than enough to provide a simple, fast, and efficient method of organizing your time, to get one step closer to success.
