In any event, the Court will deny CSC's motion for summary judgment as to Count I. The Court does not believe there is a genuine issue of material fact as to whether CSC discriminated against the plaintiffs based on their race. The only basis for the plaintiffs' discrimination claim is inauspicious labor trends, a theory which is not sufficient to support a cause of action. C. Count II: Breach of the Collective Bargaining Agreement In Count II, the plaintiffs claim that CSC violated a provision of the collective bargaining agreement ("CBA") between CSC and Local 807 by treating the plaintiffs more harshly than other employees similarly situated to them. Specifically, the plaintiffs allege that CSC violated the "Seniority Provisions" of the CBA by depriving the plaintiffs of their seniority during the layoff of other Local 807 members. The plaintiffs assert that they had more seniority than the other laid-off workers. CSC argues that the plaintiffs have no cause of action for breach of the CBA because the actions of which the plaintiffs complain are governed by a separate labor contract which does not contemplate a cause of action. Although the plaintiffs allege that they were denied seniority under the seniority provisions of the CBA, the Union contract appears to be a separate agreement. The plaintiffs allege that the seniority provisions of the CBA are part of the "Seniority Provisions" of the Union contract; however, the plaintiffs cite no support for this proposition. The seniority provisions of the CBA do not make reference to the seniority provisions of the Union contract, and the seniority provisions of the CBA include their own set of provisions and definitions that are not found in the seniority provisions of the Union contract. The CBA is a collective bargaining agreement between CSC and the Local, not a contract between CSC f30f4ceada
