Did the 5th February's Lotus Notes 8.5.2 Release fix it. The government is not going to let Nigerian craft beer lovers give up hope. Nigeria's first Nigerian craft beer, Atlas, is set to hit the market in February. Last year, President Jonathan declared January 3, 2015 as Nigerian Craft Beer Day as a tribute to the Nigeria's craft beer history. "We are coming out with our African craft beer. Yes, we are going to launch a craft beer in Nigeria. Yes, it's Nigerian. We got the rights from Nigerian," said Anabo Tunde, the brains behind Atlas Beer. The Atlas Brewery is opening its doors in Lagos on March 2 with a beer festival to celebrate the opening. Tunde, however, does not want that to be the last time you hear about Nigerian craft beer. "We are opening up a brewery. Atlas will be in Abuja by the end of the year. Yes, we are working on a craft beer in Abuja," he said. If you are wondering what he means by "craft beer", Tunde said Atlas will use locally sourced ingredients. "We are going to develop local ingredients that are used. We are not going to buy ingredients from other countries. We are going to use the milk of local goats, water from local wells. We will be using local ingredients," he said. The major difference, according to Tunde, is the brewing process. "We are going to brew beer in Nigeria. We'll use local ingredients. We'll use local water and local flavors," he said. The Atlas Brewery will brew six Nigerian craft beers - Atlas Beer, Atlas Dark Ale, Atlas Amber Ale, Atlas Lager, Atlas Pilsner, and Atlas Happy Hour. Atlas is black in color with strong hoppiness. "The name comes from the desire to see the level of craft beer in Nigeria. We want to see where craft beer has been a standard," said Tunde.
